A TRUE BOON.
THE Cynic and Fool says:—"There is nothing new under the sun," but never was a more egregious mistake made. For instance, take the vast strides that have been made within the last decade in Chemistry, and by the Surgical and Medical Professions and the thousands of cures effected that were thought impossible a few years back.
Especially is this noticeable in the case of the Animal World. A few years ago it was a common thing to hear of the slaughter of valuable animals for the slightest accident which is now looked upon as only a temporary ailment that can be cured in a few days; and what is the principal secret of this saving of Animal Life? Nothing more or less than the discovery of Mr. Henry of his wonderful WHITE OILS, CONDITION POWDERS, and DRINKS for HORSES AND CATTLE.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE BARBER'S SALOON.

At the period of these events there lived in the suburban seclusion of Jersey City a quiet and reputable young man who answered to the unassuming name of Robert Johnson. When I say that he lived there, I speak conventionally: in fact, he only slept and breakfasted there. The rest of his time he spent in the heart of the metropolis across the river.

Young Mr. Johnson was a man of agreeable manners and pleasing exterior. He was slightly above the medium height, well made and active, with a countenance that told of health and intelligence. The very hue of his cheeks, his bright grey eyes, and the cut of his short, brown, curly whiskers indicated a Scandinavian origin; and these signs were confirmed by the accent and fashion of his speech, which was of the species known as cockney. Mr. Johnson did not seek to disguise the fact that he was an Englishman, born in London.

He was a comparatively recent importation, having landed in this country six or eight months previous to the date at which this story begins. According to his own account he had been lured westward by the pressure of English competition and the lack of opportunities of advancement at home. He was of an energetic and enterprising character, and was not afraid to spend his life on a tall stool in a clerk's office at a salary rising ten pounds every year. So he had set out house hunting in Brooklyn and Jersey City, and had sailed for New York with a little money in his pocket and a large determination to make a fortune.

In addition to the determination and the money, he had brought with him something else which was perhaps of as much practical value as either. This was a knowledge of human nature—not in the higher artistic branches of the profession, but in its humbler but more generally useful phase. A capable engraver is always in demand, and within a few weeks Robert Johnson had become an employé of a Printing and Engraving Company in New York; but more lucrative possibilities and executive capacity soon brought him into prominence, and he was intrusted with the duty of overseeing the fulfilment of large orders, and was thus brought into occasional contact with the directors of the company—chief among whom was Colonel Hugh Desmond, a wealthy New Yorker, whose name the reader will doubtless perhaps recall. Between Colonel Desmond and Robert Johnson a kind of friendly regard, as between superior and subordinate, was immediately established, and their conversation sometimes passed beyond the limits of business routine and touched upon a wide range of topics unknown was a man of good education and by no means inclined to abuse the liberties which were accorded to him. But Colonel Desmond in his capacity of employer had lived at Modena and Wiesbaden, and it was a pleasure to him now to interrogate Johnson as to the changes which had occurred in the world's capital since his departure, and especially as to the political aspects of the times. Johnson appeared well-informed upon this as upon other matters, but he betrayed a tendency to think for himself, often in opposition to the prevailing English political dogmas, which attracted the colonel's attention and did not seem to displease him. In regard to the high compliment, then in its earlier stages, their coincidence of view was particularly marked; indeed, Johnson seemed inclined to go further in the direction of annexation, and occasionally expounded opinions the vigour of which seemed to go beyond even the avowed views of the Land League.

"I long for England, he once said," and I know that logical argument and moral considerations will never influence her where she considers her interests to be at stake. Violence is the only mode of reasoning that she is capable of appreciating, and whatever may be said against the Fenians, a year of their methods will do more to free Ireland than ten years' talk and obstruction in the House of Commons."

"That's a queer way for an Englishman to talk," remarked the colonel, smiling.

"I consider myself an American now," replied Robert Johnson, "and, besides, my mother was born in Ireland."

The colonel shook his head, still smiling. "Fenianism is dead," said he; "and constitutional measures are the order of the day."

"It's not a question of safety but of freedom," returned the younger man; "and I don't remember any country that ever freed itself from oppression by strictly constitutional means. Certainly this country did not."

"America is a country of compromise," replied the colonel, "and England is separated from the first by three thousand miles, and from the other by scarce fifty. It's another thing altogether. Your ideas may be sound enough in the abstract; I am an Irishman myself and not in love with England, but Fenianism is a forlorn hope. No one with any regard for his own welfare and happiness would enrol himself among Fenians."

"Well," said Robert Johnson, lifting his chin in a way he had, "I dare say nothing would suit me better, myself, but I have no one but myself to look out for, and if I were asked to join a Fenian society I should feel very much inclined to do it."

"In that case," answered the colonel with a laugh, and laying his hand in a friendly way on the young man's shoulder, "I must hope, in the interests of the company, that the offer will not be made to you. All the same, I like your spirit, and one of these days we may have some further talk about it."

If Johnson was a favourite in the office he was also on excellent terms with his associates in Jersey City. He had taken up his quarters in a private house in the suburban part of the town, removed by a mile or thereabouts from the smoke and dirt of the more thickly-populated region adjoining the river. Here he occupied a room at the front of one of the rows which his house stood; a broad and handsome thoroughfare crowning the Heights and shaded by large trees. The house was detached and somewhat withdrawn from the road. Johnson occupied two rooms on the first floor—a sitting-room facing on the avenue, and a bed-room looking out on the garden at the back. His landlady allowed him a night-key, for his duties at the office frequently kept him out till late at night, so that he occasionally dined at his own restaurants. This confidence on the landlady's part was justified by her lodger's unexceptionable habits; save for the occasional late hours, which were unavoidable and which inconvenienced no one except himself, there was absolutely nothing to be said against him. Never was his virtuous character more clear. He was always cheerful and good-humoured, with a good word for everybody; and he was a very handy man about the house. In the winter, Johnson could mend it; if the water-pipe leaked, he could solder it: if a door wouldn't shut, he could persuade it; if the baby had the colic, he could relieve it; if the apple-tree in the garden needed pruning, he knew where to apply the shears. He was always adequate to the occasion and always willing. Before he had been three months in the house Mrs. Pond, the landlady, regarded him almost as one of the family, with the additional claim to her good graces for his accommodations, and prized it with unfailing regularity. She lost the habit of counting her tea-spoons and allowed him to drink as many cups of tea as he wanted without a murmur. Lizzie Pond, the landlady's daughter, a pretty girl of seventeen, with confiding eyes and a tongue (so the lodger had imagined) of the opinion that Robert Johnson was about the finest man that ever lived, and her mother (who knew the secret to the contrary) did not think fit to counteract Lizzie's impression. Altogether, Mr. Johnson's American career was opening with favourable auspices.

Although the young man, as he said, had no one dependent upon him, and although his exposed sympathies were less with the country of his birth than with free-and-easy, or down-trodden Ireland, yet he received every week a good number of letters bearing the London postmark. Miss Lizzie Pond sometimes improved the opportunity of examining the external aspect of these letters, and derived a maidenly pleasure from the fact that none of them appeared to be written in a feminine hand-writing. Johnson said they were from men with whom he had been associated while practising his profession in the old country, and whether or not he answered them all regularly there was no sure means of determining; at all events he posted his mail himself and the contents and addresses of his correspondents were unknown; and though he was very open and transparent in his general conversation he was never at a loss for plausible excuses or expedients for evading the attacks of inconvenient curiosity. It was not that he appeared to have any particular secrets; but it was sometimes impossible to make him commit himself on a given subject. He simply did not want to, and in the easiest and most good-natured way he would not do it.

Miss Lizzie Pond was not entirely unsuspicious, but she was quite an accomplished young lady; the ordinary school curriculum having been supplemented by a course of French novels and other virtuous diligence. She could not only bound any given country on the planet, but she could trim a gown as handsomely as a professional dressmaker; she could not only do a sum in quadratics, but she could turn you out an omelette as light as sea-foam. She could converse fluently and with accuracy on the date of the Battle of Marathon, or of the peace of Utrecht, she could sing you "The Sands of Dee" so as to bring the tears into your eyes. She could talk French with a most remarkable accent; but, if you were ill and weary of life, she could nurse you with such tact and gentleness that invalidism became a luxury. In the absence of Lizzie Pond was. I do not mean to imply that girls of her type were especially common in Jersey City or anywhere else; but they do occur now and then, and the young unmarried man who happens to run across one of them, and to make a good impression on her, may be accounted lucky.

One day Robert Johnson happened to hear Colonel Desmond say that his wife was looking out for a companion; and he bethought himself that Lizzie Pond would be the very girl for the post. He therefore took it upon himself to acquaint the colonel with the fact of her existence, and to add such commentaries as his heart or conscience dictated. The colonel lent a favouring ear to his suggestions, and having consulted them, informed Mr. Johnson that he would speak to his wife about Miss Pond, and that it might be advisable for Miss Pond herself to call upon Mrs. Desmond, and afford that lady an opportunity of forming an opinion of her own on the matter. Mr. Johnson willingly acceded to his proposal; and when he imparted his news to Lizzie, though she was at first inclined to shrink from the idea of embarking thus precipitately upon what might be considered a worldly career, yet Robert employed such arguments that she personally consented to take advantage of the opening he had afforded her; her mother also was won over to the scheme at the call upon Mrs. Desmond was made; and the upshot of it all was that, within a week Lizzie Pond was domesticated as the colonel's lady's companion, where she gave great satisfaction; and that Robert Johnson thenceforth spent more evenings in New York than a strict attention to business demanded of him.

The Desmonds occupied a large house on one of the most fashionable thoroughfares; it stood on a corner lot, and enjoyed two sets of handsome entrances which set the pride and (so to speak) the hall-mark of the New York millionaire. Lizzie's duties were diverse enough to keep her from any accomplishments in good working-order and yet not so exacting as to make her feel that her life had ceased to be her own. Mrs. Desmond was a considerable, if not an indulgent mistress; she found her young companion extremely useful, and she speedily became fond of her. Lizzie, for her part, as soon as she got over the inevitable home-sickness, became happy in her new surroundings, and regarded her mistress with affectionate admiration. Mrs. Desmond was, as has already been mentioned, a Frenchwoman by birth, and was still remarkably beautiful; she was, in a refined way, the best-dressed woman in New York; her manners had a charming delicacy mingled with bonhomie; she was a most accomplished hostess, and music was to her a passion rather than a pleasure. She herself possessed a voice, and a method in singing that would have done credit to a prima donna; and if was the delight of her husband to attend concerts and operas for which New York is getting to be as renowned as any of the cities of Europe. On these occasions she was uniformly accompanied by Lizzie, who thus had opportunities to form and mature her taste such as are seldom enjoyed by persons whose income is less than fifty thousand a year. She also commonly conversed with her mistress in French, she was in a fair way to become a very lady of exceptional attainments.

Colonel Desmond, though a rather grave and taciturn personage, seemed to possess a kindly nature, and was evidently a cordial admirer of his beautiful wife. He denied her nothing; and yet it sometimes occurred to Lizzie that he did not admit her in the fullest sense into his confidence. When she asked him about his affairs he would put her off with some phrase that told nothing; and at breakfast in the morning he received many letters, which he read in silence and with a lowering brow, and of the contents of which he never said anything. Once and sometimes twice in a week he would go out after dinner and not return till the small hours of the morning. Lizzie heard him tell his wife on one such occasion that he had been to the "lodge," and Mrs. Desmond had afterward remarked to Lizzie, with a sigh, that her husband was a prominent figure in several organisations; "but, of course," she added, "men tell us women nothing about such things." In short, there seemed to be a barrier of some kind between the husband and wife. Whether the barrier originated in some domestic misunderstanding, or rested upon the impersonal basis, Lizzie was unable to decide.

Johnson saw Lizzie often; with the approval of her mother and the consent of her mistress they went on various mild little sprees together—to the theatre, to Coney Island, up the Hudson on the Mary Powell, and by the trains. She told him all the details of her new life at the Desmonds, and he never seemed tired of listening to her. Sometimes, when she happened to mention any of Colonel Desmond's peculiar sayings or doings, he would listen intently, and question her closely, and she occasionally wondered why. At other times he would ask her to observe whether certain things occurred in the household; or to ask her mistress certain questions, and to note her answers. But on the whole altogether polish in breathing, and now walk about.' Again a lady says:—'It reduced me considerably not only in the body but all over.' The author is very positive. He says, "Step on the scales every morning, before eating and again on Tuesday, and I can guarantee that you have lost 2lb. in weight without the slightest harm, and was immediately struck by the thorough riddling of the system of unhealthy accumulations."—Cork Herald.

IS OBESITY THE RESULT OF RICH DIET?

Fat begins to accumulate as soon as the system has attained its full development, and will go on increasing, if not checked, until the decline of life; then it ought to afford that help and opportunity of the importance of fat as a non-conducting substance in impeding the too rapid escape of animal heat, it may be regarded as a store of material to compensate for the waste of tissue under sickness or other circumstances entailing temporary abstinence from food. Most writers consider that obesity is due to a rich diet, with imperfect activity, tranquility of mind, &c.; and, although admitting these to be concurrent causes, Dr. F. C. Gundell, in eminent specialist on "Corpulency and the Cure" (252 pages), which is the title of a book just through the press with the eighteenth edition, that obesity arising from such causes solely is comparatively rare. There is a considerable difference of opinion as to how much all these influences will increase the production and deposition of fat. We are of this gentleman's opinion. Mr. Russell Jackson, writes that he has relief to those who suffer from obesity "in the hirch," for he prescribes a remedy, and a most effectual one too, consisting solely of herbs, which are taken in the form of tea. The herbs are of no delicious ingredient, and yet he can reduce a person's weight from 2lbs. to even 10lbs. a week without having to swallow anything in the shape of nasty fat. Dr. Gundell measures. This successful combination of vegetable extracts was not obtained without considerable research and painstaking investigation. It is a remedy that will take, three small doses will in many instances reduce from 11lb. to 5lbs. in the short space of twenty-four hours. However, the cost of the book is only four stamps, and can be obtained direct from Mr. Russell Jackson, 252, Caledonian Road, London, W.C. There are matters highly interesting to stout persons to be gleaned from his book, also hundreds of letters (expressed from patients) testifying to the marvellous and various fluctuating weights after taking so much of the compound. These are not the ordinary stereotyped sort of quack testimonials, but really from intelligent persons who

TOLD BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.

NEW POOR RATES FOR THETFORD.—Poor-rates have been made for the ensuing half-year at Thetford: —For St. Cuthbert's at 2s., St. Mary's at 1s. 8d., and St. Peter's at 1s. 6d.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—Madame Worth's celebrated Guinea Corsets (black 25s.) may be obtained from her Local Agents, Messrs. Fisk and Son, Suffolk House, Ipswich.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.—We are authorised to state that the Great Eastern Railway Company have decided to arrange for an extra fast train from Norwich every morning, leaving at about 8.55 a.m., and arriving at Liverpool Street at 11.50 or 11.55.

HARVEST SERVICE AT IPSWICH HOSPITAL.—On Sunday morning a harvest service was held in the chapel of the Ipswich Hospital. The interior of the sacred edifice had been chastely decorated with flowers, moss, vegetables, apples, and grapes, this work being chiefly done by Masters Isaac and Roger. The sermon was preached by the Rev. W. J. Garrould (chaplain).

INTERMENTS IN IPSWICH CEMETERY.—Saturday: Celia Baker, 26 years, St. Michael. Monday: James McDonnell, 2 years, St. Clement. Tuesday: Mary Eldridge, 65 years, Holy Trinity; Stella Saunders, infant, All Saints, Tuesday: Winifred E. Scales, infant, St. Matthew. Thursday: Mary A. Robinson, 49 years, All Saints. Thursday: Hephzibah Harvey, 83 years, St. Matthew.

THE NEW VICAR OF ST. MARY ELMS, IPSWICH.—The Rev. A. W. Van Den Bergh, the vicar-elect of St. Mary-le-Bow, Ipswich, preached his first sermon in the church on Sunday. In the morning he addressed to the congregation a few introductory words, asking for their hearty and kind support. He called on them to associate themselves earnestly with him in the new ministrations. In the evening he remarked that as last year was his first, so this year was a year of trial to the parish, he thought it right to bring before the congregation their first duty—their duty towards God.

CROWN STREET SCHOOL, IPSWICH, EXTENSION FUND.—An entertainment, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the extension fund, was held in the old vestry extension in connection with Crown Street Chapel, was given on Wednesday evening by the Southwold Choral Society, under the Rev. A. A. Dowsett presiding. Fourteen little girls, trained by Miss Farrow, gave an action song. Songs were also given by Mr. Bowden, Mr. Bailey, Mr. Bloomfield, Mr. Game, Mr. A. J. Harvey, Mr. Amey, Miss Winifred Austin, Miss Nellie Dowsett, Mr. Harry Austin, and Miss Annie Dowsett.

STREET ACCIDENT AT IPSWICH: CAPT. PRETTMAN'S COACHMAN THROWN.—On Monday evening as Capt. E. G. Prettyman, of Orwell Park, was driving, accompanied by his coachman, out of St. Helens Street into Lloyds, the pole of the carriage came in contact on to a ridge of loose earth, which had been excavated in connection with the introduction there of some new water mains. Capt. Prettyman was not injured, but his coachman was ejected from the trap, although fortunately not hurt, and having picked himself up, the journey to Orwell Park was continued.

SHAKESPEARIAN RECITAL AT IPSWICH.—Mr. James Stillwell, who has a rising reputation as an elocutionist in London, gave a recital in the Art Gallery, Ipswich, on Wednesday evening. At the People's Palace in the Mile End Road, London, Mr. Stillwell was awarded first prize for reading and reciting, and as the Polytechnic not long ago he gained a three-guinea certificate for elocution. The selection on Wednesday evening was taken from Shakespeare. Mr. Stillwell displayed true histrionic ability, and was greatly applauded by being the scene in the hall of the Palace of Theseus from "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

IPSWICH ST. JOHN AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION.—Work has begun this season. There are large classes for first-aid at Argyle Street School, and Higher Grade, at the Art Gallery, on Wednesday and Monday evenings, and a nursing class on Friday, only open to those who hold first-aid certificates. The nursing class held its first meeting at the Art Gallery on Monday evening, when some seventeen ladies, nearly all of whom hold first-aid and nursing certificates, were present to hear a lecture on "Germs of Disease," from Mr. Hetherington. The interest taken in these lectures, moreover, has nearly twice averaged in some to the lessons of sanitary science.

ST. STEPHEN'S, IPSWICH, HARVEST FESTIVAL.—Thanksgiving services were held at this church, on Friday evening and Sunday, the church being neatly decorated. The pulpit had been very appropriately treated by Mrs. H. Scott Tuke, and the font had been taken in hand the reading-desk, the Misses Laura and Lucy Cullingham delight to show what their artistic taste and standards were decorated by Miss Cullingham. On Friday evening the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. F. D. Brown, rector of Bramford, on Sunday the preachers were the Rector, the Rev. W. F. Clark, and the Rev. F. Haslewood, rector of St. Matthew's. The offertories were devoted to the church expenses and the East Suffolk Hospital.

Sayings are characteristic of nations. There is more in this than people often think; for instance, la favourite British saying is "Believe everyone to tell the truth till it is proved otherwise." Other nations say, "Believe everyone to be untruthful until proved otherwise." Mark the contrast! Without claiming undue originality for our people, we do claim some fairness, which is lacking in the latter. TROVATOLO justly claims to prevent, cure, and heal, in cases of diarrhœa, cholera, sick headache, and all bowel disorders, stings, bites, sores, and wounds. TROVATOLO is perfectly safe for old and young. This is the truth and nothing but the truth. TROVATOLO, in bottles, 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. Agents:—Messrs. Cornell and Cornell, Chemists, Tavern Street, Ipswich.

CRICKET CLUB CONCERT AT ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL, IPSWICH.—A successful concert was given in this school on Tuesday evening. The Rev. W. S. King presided, and stated that the object of the concert was to raise funds to cover the first season's expenses of the 2nd Ed. Ipswich Cricket Club in connection with St. John's Cricket Club. An excellent programme was provided by Mr. F. Pudan, an old captain of the club, who ably accompanied the singers, and by Mr. Harvey, who appreciated the efforts of the band and choir. The vocalists were: Misses N. Cooper, A. L. Broome, F. Goodchild, and Mr. Harvey, and Messrs. H. E. Leggett, A. Pryke, F. W. Dalby, Martin and Pudan. The funds of the cricket club will benefit to the extent of £5.

IPSWICH GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY.—On Monday evening an entertainment was given at the Old Museum Rooms to provide funds for supplying work and amusements for the girls attending the classes of St. Stephen's parish of the Ipswich Girls' Friendly Society. Miss Cullingham, who undertook the arrangement of the programme, was successful in receiving the support of several ladies and gentlemen, whose efforts were thoroughly appreciated by a good audience. Among those who contributed to the entertainment were:—Miss Ruth Bland, Mr. A. E. Silgrave, Mr. W. Turner, Miss Kingdon, Miss Packard, Mrs. Tempest, Miss Ellis, Mr. Bloomfield, Mr. Game, Mr. Cobbold, Mr. Tempest, and Miss Edith Brown. The branch secretary (Miss Burton), in speaking of the work at the parish, said that the object was to bring girls of all together girls and women of any position or occupation to help and work for one another.

IPSWICH VOLUNTEER RIFLE CLUB.—The final competition for the prizes given by the President of the Ipswich Rifle Club, Lieut.-Col. Vincent Vyvyan, took place on Wednesday afternoon at Greenwich Farm Range. The weather, although very dull and misty, was favourable for shooting, and the club was remarkably good shoot-up for the first place by Pvt. T. Plowman and Sergt. Watson, the former winning the first prize in kind to the value of three guineas by four points only. The following are the highest scores made on Wednesday afternoon, and the six highest aggregates for the competition:—Sergt. Watson 96, Bandsman Steed 93 Pvt. T. Plowman 91, Trooper Rose 88, Sergt. Penner 81. Following are the three highest aggregates of the 12 spoon shoots for the season on named days, the eight highest scores to count, Sergt. Tracy's crew, in the Rose, defeating the Gazelle's crew. Mr. H. C. Westgate acted as starter, and Mr. F. Tracy as judge. At the dinner in the evening Mr. C. Hayward presided, and after the usual loyal toasts, the vice-chair.—The toast of "The Ipswich Corporation" was proposed by Mr. C. J. Goodwin, of the Naiad Club. —Mr. A. C. Hayward, in response, alluded to the success of the regatta, which he attributed to the zeal of the Committee. Mr. Hayward rema ked that the Naiad Club was not one of the oldest clubs on the river, and made an amusing allusion to the state of the river at low tide.—The hon. secretary, Mr. George Turner, also responded.—Mr. C. Goodwin proposed "The Rowing Clubs," and the hon. secretary, Mr. Percy Smith, responded.—Mr. Wilkinson proposed the toast of "The Petrels," to which Mr. E. C. Jennings (Petrel) responded.—"The Ladies" were toasted by Mr. F. Tracy, and Mr. Richard Tungate responded on their behalf.—Mr. Hayward gave "The Visitors," and Mr. H. C. IPSWICH ROWING CLUBS COMPLETE THEIR SEASON.—The Naiad and Petrel Rowing Clubs completed a most successful season on Saturday by an inter-club regatta, race on the Orwell, and a dinner at the Beehive Hotel. Four crews started in the inter-club scratch fours, the final of which resulted in H. L. Tracy's crew, in the Rose, defeating the Gazelle's crew. Mr. H. C. Westgate acted as starter, and Mr. F. Tracy as judge. At the dinner in the evening Mr. C. Hayward presided, and after the usual loyal toasts, the vice-chair.—The toast of "The Ipswich Corporation" was proposed by Mr. C. J. Goodwin, of the Naiad Club. —Mr. A. C. Hayward, in response, alluded to the success of the regatta, which he attributed to the zeal of the Committee. Mr. Hayward rema ked that the Naiad Club was not one of the oldest clubs on the river, and made an amusing allusion to the state of the river at low tide.—The hon. secretary, Mr. George Turner, also responded.—Mr. C. Goodwin proposed "The Rowing Clubs," and the hon. secretary, Mr. Percy Smith, responded.—Mr. Wilkinson proposed the toast of "The Petrels," to which Mr. E. C. Jennings (Petrel) responded.—"The Ladies" were toasted by Mr. F. Tracy, and Mr. Richard Tungate responded on their behalf.—Mr. Hayward gave "The Visitors," and Mr. H. C. Westgate and Mr. Gillsmith replied.—The programme included songs by the Chairman, and Messrs. W. C. Keable, S. F. Wainwright, Mauby, C. H. Goodwin, H. Wright, G. D. Pryce, J. C. Wilkinson, F. Howe, Buckham, H. H. Wire, and Webb-ter, while Mr. G. Gunn played violin solos. Mr. H. E. Nott, Bramford, contributed a humorous recital on the piano. During the evening the Chairman distributed the prizes to the winners of the afternoon's events.

TECHNICAL INSTRUCTION AT ALDEBURGH.—The Aldeburgh Technical Instruction Committee met on Friday evening at the Moot Hall, when the Rev. W. G. Wilkinson was re-elected chairman, Mr. W. H. Hall was elected vice-chairman, and Mr. W. Brooks as hon. secretary. The subjects selected were:—Dressmaking and cutting-out and wood carving, with drawing and shading. Mr. Hall, in a humorous speech, said the Mayor granted the use of the Town Hall for the classes.

GOLFING AT ALDEBURGH.—The monthly medal, played for on Saturday, was won by Mr. A. Alifrey, Mr. F. B. Pettit being a winner on a previous occasion. Scores:—Mr. A. Alifrey 88 Mr. Pettit 89, Mr. C. G. Salmon 88 Mr. C. S. Murdoch 88, Mr. G. F. Mitchell 90, Mr. Irving, D. G. Pryce, J. C. Wilkinson, F. Howe, Buckham, H

THE IRISH LAND QUESTION: DECISION OF THE CO

TOWN AND COUNTRY

CHRISTCHURCH PARK PURCHASE.

IMPROVED SANITATION FOR IPSWICH.

RAILWAY CHARGES EXTRAORDINARY.

IPSWICH FRIDAY.

Wednesday was a day of importance in the annals of the Ipswich Corporation, for by a majority of 23 to 11 the purchase of Christchurch Park was decided. The majority was an overwhelming one, and in face of it the Local Government Board are hardly likely to set the decision of such a distinct majority of the ratepayers on one side. We may, therefore, take it that in the course of a few months this magnificent property will be open to the public. When the first flush of excitement has passed by, we strongly opine that even the most severe opponents of the purchase will on reflection agree with us that they were ill advised in setting their faces against this addition to the municipal properties at the present moment. Had the Corporation not decided to effect the purchase on Wednesday, we have good reasons for believing that the syndicate that holds the estate would have at once proceeded to realise. Then the opportunity would have gone for ever, for it would have been impossible in the nature of things to have artificially created such another spot with all its sboreal splendour. Imitation can never hope to equal nature, and in Christchurch Park we have nature in her best garb.

Some declared against the purchase on the ground of a park being unnecessary in Ipswich. It was urged that while parks were desirable in towns the atmosphere of which was vitiated by the smoke and fumes from countless chimneys, and where the inhabitants had such a resort in Ipswich, the air being claimed to be absolutely pure. But we would answer to these that the striking feature of municipal life of modern days should be to ensure as far as possible that it is the duty of the rich to rule to do so for the benefit, not of the few only, but of the many. Many Corporations are going back to the days of our forefathers, whose endeavour it was to always keep in view the ideals of the Greek and Roman states, and to, more or less conscious, to adopt the Socratic and Platonic principles of education. "Virtue is knowledge," said the Greek philosopher. Good citizens of a good State, produced by the supply of healthy surroundings to all its members, was his ideal. "We would not have our citizens grow up," says Plato, "among the images of deformity, as in some noxious pasture, and there browse and feed upon many a baneful flower until they shall have collected a mass of evil gathered in their own soul. We ought, on the contrary, to seek out artists of another stamp, so that our young men dwelling in a healthful region may drink in good from every quarter, and be unconsciously drawn from childhood upwards to the value of art gallaries, museums, libraries, and last, but not least, of open spaces so preserved and adorned as to be not only a source of rest, recreation and health, but to inculcate a love of the beautiful. It is the bounden duty to the credit of the majority of the Ipswich Town Council that they have recognised that Christchurch Park is infinitely more precious than many things which, in these days, have come to be regarded as necessities.

The purchase of the Park should stimulate the erection of buildings in its neighbourhood, and the town will greatly benefit by it. But to put the financial question on one and view the matter from a social point of view. The surroundings of the Park must do much towards the regeneration of a large class of people in Ipswich who are not wicked to exist in the most abject squalor, and for whom the engine of the law has no terror. Many of this class are sure to be touched by its educative influence. Their squalid dwellings and filthy and insanitary surroundings must speedily become distasteful to them, and they will be incited to the securing such an admirable park. For the classes we have spoken of there will be at least one "pure" image provided.

It may not be generally known that Sir George Murray Humphrey, who has made a generous gift to Addenbrook Hospital, Cambridge, is a Suffolk man by birth. He was born at Bury St. Edmunds, having studied at St. Bethelomew's, most of his activities have been noteworthy in Cambridge. For many years Sir George represented the University on the General Medical Council, and among other honours he has been appointed to that of Professor of Surgery in connection with the same University. Sir George is a most distinguished figure in the scientific world, and great difficulty would be experienced in trying to mention the many learned societies which he belongs to, for he is the happy possessor of numerous initials.

Apropos our article on medieval Aldeburgh, which appeared in the "Daily Graphic," the Daily Chronicle remarks:—"Danger threatens one of the most picturesque municipal buildings in England—the Moot Hall, of the ancient borough of Aldeburgh. All visitors to the Suffolk fishing town will remember the quaint old-fashioned stone-and-timber structure, to which Crabbe sang:

'Save when to yonder Hall they bend their way,
Where the grave justices sum up the day;
He who recites, to keep the poor in awe,
The law's vast volume; for he knows the law!'

It stands down by the seashore near the north end of the town. It was built as it ill adapted for the purpose. The historic use of it was as a lock-up; no windows ever planned can make it a convenient office, and the breaking through of the old basement walls is more than likely to bring down the whole fabric as well. In the long run, a fine relic will be spoilt."

In the thoroughgoing and practical programme of reform which the Town Council of Norwich, propounded at Bramford last week special attention was directed to the anomalous position in which English agricultural produce was placed as compared with imported foreign goods. No better argument against the landlording system of this country could be assumed than a case which has since come under our notice. A Gloucestershire fruit grower sent to Manchester a consignment, weighing 20 cwt., of fine large pears, which on the market realised only £3 8s. 9d. The cost was an excessive price, evenif the grower had received the whole; but as a matter of fact market expenses and commission absorbed 8s. 1d.; while the railway companies claimed no less than £2 8s. 8d. of the total sum, or a percentage more than equal to one for years the magnificent (sic) sum of 11s. 7d., out of which the cost of picking and packing has to be paid. In other words, he was paid for choice fruit at the rate of a penny per lb. The railway company are taking two-thirds of the gross receipts, and leaving the salesman and the buyer to struggle for the remaining third. Had a similar quantity of fruit been grown abroad, we are within the mark in saying that the cost of shipping and railway carriage at most would not have exceeded, altogether have totalled more than half the amount charged the Gloucestershire farmer for sending his goods to Manchester Market. And this, a contemporary remarks in the most moderate terms, is to say nothing of the lack of fostering care for the over-rated and hardly pressed agricultural.

Three additions to the Ipswich Borough Bench have this week been made by the Lord Chancellor, viz., Mr. E. H. Turner, who for years ago was Chief Magistrate of the Borough; Mr. R. D. Fraser, the Deputy Mayor; and Mr. W. O. White, who may be said to represent that very large constituency in Ipswich, the members of the Friendly Societies. All three gentlemen can lend a very faithful service to the town, and in their selection the charge of party vanity minus merit will not easily be laid. They are each and all old and respected citizens, whose judgment on matters affecting the welfare of the town will command general respect; and having regard to their past career and present position we have little doubt they will prove as valuable servants on the Borough Bench as has been the case in other branches of the social and municipal life of the Borough.

Ipswich ratepayers have for some time been agitated over the treatment of the sewage, no less on the score of health than on that of economy. And of course a considerable amount of unanimity prevailed at Wednesday's Council meeting respecting the result of the experiments which the Borough Surveyor has made with the Hermite process, which by electricity and water has been proved capable of rendering sewage matter sterile and inoffensive. The Council have decided to ask for a loan for the purpose of putting the system into operation in conjunction with the sewerage of the Marsh district, and this, as a matter of course, means additional public expenditure. As was observed by some members of the Council, the scheme is a speculation; but it is equally true that most schemes have been that way when first brought forward. It necessarily resolve itself into a question of judgment, and at this same time having due regard to local requirements. And the Hermite process has thus far achieved all that its inventor claims; the Ipswich taste have justified its selection for adoption as being, under all circumstances, the most suitable for the town, and time, therefore, must alone show if the Council have decided wisely or not. Everybody is for a high standard of health and a low death-rate. The Corporation realise the necessity of treating the sewage thoroughly and of purifying the sewers, and having acted solely on the principle that they were acting in the best interests of not to complain, even though the system adopted should eventually fail to do all the great things which is claimed for it. Were a plebiscite of the town to be taken, we should have little doubt that the Council would be receiving the thanks of the public by having boldly faced a long-standing difficulty.

NEW BOROUGH MAGISTRATES FOR IPSWICH.

We are all proud of our fine battalion of Suffolk Volunteers; but it would appear as though the ladies of Ipswich are not proud of them. Any handsome trophy of one sort and another are offered for competition by the officers and other friends of the battalion, and now a movement is on foot for presenting to the regiment a Challenge Cup. The idea is a laudable one, but Mr. Pawsey, of the Ancient House, has undertaken to receive donations to the fund, and it is hoped that the ladies will succeed in securing a cup worthy both of themselves and the interest they have taken in our citizen soldiers.

General regret and some amount of alarm was expressed throughout Suffolk at the news that the Duke of Hamilton, while proceeding in his splendid steam yacht, the Thistle, to Ipswich Dock last week, ruptured a blood vessel. His Grace has since remained on board the yacht, and, under the care of Dr. R. H. Cheley, he has made such progress towards recovery that only a few days more will be required to enable him to make the journey to Easton Park. The Duke of Hamilton's numerous friends, and they are to be found throughout the length and breadth of Suffolk, will wish him speedy and permanent convalescence.

Thanks mainly to the efforts of Mrs. Berners, that exc-llent institution in St. John's, Ipswich, the Lodge of Help, has been successfully carried on in the cause of a much maligned and harshly treated class of females. Some interesting details concerning the work of this home, as stated at the annual meeting on Monday, will be found elsewhere, but we would point to the necessity of more general support being accorded to the ladies who are responsible for the management of the home. As the Mayor of Ipswich and several of the Aldermen and the committee remarked, philanthropic and charitable Christians only require to understand more about the Lodge of Help Good Shepherd to compel them to render it hearty sympathy and pecuniary help.

It is impossible to avoid a feeling of sentimental regret (remarks a contemporary) at the number of Farm sales that have taken place this Michaelmas, especially when inquiry shows that the changes by which they have been necessitated are in many instances those of very old families, all too few generations have farmed for same holding. But like most of us, the farmer of today sets little store on the traditions of the elders. Small holders, too, are grumbling vigorously because the demand for allotments does not seem as full as it ought to be, and consequently prices rule at a low ebb. Undoubtedly the Englishman is, as a rule, fond of home-made food, yet he extensively purchases the foreigner and the large manufacturer.

The Board of Agriculture, under the advice that the season is approaching when the winter moth and other dangerous moths will commence laying their eggs, have issued a circular calling attention to the steps against this species of moth, and suggesting methods of diminishing the danger. Tar or constant greasing of the barks of trees should be avoided. The mode recommended for preventing the growth of these insects is that of encircling the trunk with tinfed bands. This consists of a girdle of tin with a wide rim turned up all round inside. It is fastened to strong linen or sacking and fixed by a cord to which the linen or sacking is sewn. Grease is then applied to the rim again with grease or tar or offensive material, and effectively prevents the moths from ascending the trees. Several English growers have already tried this contrivance with success. Copies of this circular with diagrams may be had gratis on application to the Board of Agriculture, Whitehall Place, London, S.E.

CRIME IN IRELAND.

SEQUEL TO AN AGRARIAN FEUD.

As three brothers, named John, Michael, and Patrick Murphy, were returning from Newmarket (co. Cork) Fair late on Wednesday night they were attacked by a gang of men, and John was knocked down by two heavy sticks, and was killed in the presence of his brothers. The assailants then attacked an old carman named Egan, who was driving the dead man's cart. Egan's wife was present, and her screams attracted the attention of some passers-by, who conveyed her husband to Newmarket, where his wounds were dressed. Egan is entertained of his recovery. Egan, it appears, was attacked in mistake for one of the Murphy party. The brothers Michael and Patrick Murphy have identified two men, Philip Barry and David Roche, as the murderers.

£3 FOR AN ATTEMPTED KISS.

DISGRACEFUL ASSAULT ON A DOMESTIC.

For attempting to kiss Emily Thorne, a servant girl, Charles Smith was on Thursday fined £3 at Westminster. The girl was in the service of a person named Powell, at 34, Whitehead's Grove, Chelsea, and the evidence was to the effect that on 2nd October, whilst this person was lying drunk on a bed the defendant, his friend and visitor, went into the kitchen, where the girl was cooking the dinner, and tried to kiss her. The girl said the defendant had been drinking, and refused to do so when he made immediate complaint, said that Smith was sober. This witness, who was sent for by order of the Magistrate, said that the girl's face was very scarce as she had alleged, nor did her complaint go to the same extent. Mr. De Rutzen said the defendant's conduct was very disgraceful.

THE SINGULAR DEATH OF AN IPSWICH PENSIONER.

REPORT OF THE WORKHOUSE COMMITTEE.

UNION OFFICIALS CENSURED.

The singular death in Ipswich Workhouse of Jas. Mortlock, an old pensioner, on the 28th ult., the details of which were fully gone into in our last issue), again came under the notice of the Ipswich Board of Guardians, when the Mayor (Mr. S. R. Annesy) presided. The Sub-Committee appointed to investigate the alleged dereliction of duty of the Workhouse master (Mr. Sidney Lawrence), to whom the made immediate complaint, said that Smith was sober. This witness, who was sent for by order of the Magistrate, said that the girl's face was very scarce as she had alleged, nor did her complaint go to the same extent. Mr. De Rutzen said the defendant's conduct was very disgraceful.

A BOY'S FATAL TOY.

SAD DEATH OF A MOTHER.

A little boy playing with a pistol at Rattray, Perthshire, on Wednesday, applied a match to the touch-hole, when the pistol went off, and the charge struck his mother, Mrs. Allan. The unfortunate woman died shortly afterwards.

NEW BOROUGH MAGISTRATES FOR IPSWICH.

The Lord Chancellor has placed the following gentlemen on the Commission of the Peace for the Borough of Ipswich:—Mr. Edward Rush Turner, Mr. Roderick Donald Fraser, Mr. William Orford White. It is expected that the new J.P.'s will qualify at the Borough Quarter Sessions on the 18th inst.

THE ACCIDENT TO MR. JOSEPH SMITH.

On enquiring of the medical attendant of Mr. Joseph Smith, of Thorpe Hall, Hasketon, who, it will be remembered, had his thigh broken last week by being thrown from his trap near Hasketon Station, our Woodbridge correspondent was informed that the patient is progressing very satisfactorily than far.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE SUFFOLK SHEEP SOCIETY.

The following new members of this Society have been elected:—Mr. W. N. L. Champion, Riddlesworth Hall; Mr. John Goddard, Tunstall; Mr. J. A. Fiel'er, Ipplepen; Mr. Thomas Hobbs, Bury; Mr. Edgar Drake, Brise, Spains Hall, Braintree; Mr. E. H. Sikes, Great Bentley, Sudbury; Mr. Owen Parry, Sweland Hall, Hargrave; Mr. Arthur Cobbold, Holbrook; Little Horringer Hall, Bury St. Edmund's; Mr. M. G. Hale, Bury; Mr. Thomas Hornby, Ipswich; Mr. A. H. Cobbold, Blakenham; Mr. Edward Clover, Ashby-Newmarket; and Mr. C. S. Sherwood, Leiston.

SUICIDE THROUGH GRIEF.

Mary Coupe, single woman, aged 40, of Boyton Farm, Grimsargh, near Preston, was found drowned in a pit near her home on Friday by her brother Thomas. Deceased and her two brothers had lived at Boyton Farm all their lives, but were about to give up the farm, and over this deceased had brooded for some time. She complained of feeling unwell on Thursday, and left out of its place. She retired to rest on Monday night last with her niece, who left her in the bedroom the following morning dressing. She was not seen alive again, and her body, when recovered, had the appearance of having been in the water some days.

GRUESOME DISCOVERY IN THE SHIP CANAL.

On Saturday, a shocking discovery was made at Runcorn. While the lock-keepers were engaged at the lock on the Brigsworth side of the canal, they saw something floating. He took it from the water, and found it to be the upper part of a woman's body. Other portions were subsequently found. The remains were much decomposed. The body is supposed to have been cut up by passing steamers. The remains were identified by means of the clothing as portion of the body of Agnes Anderson, wife of William Anderson, landlord of the Anchor Inn, Brunswick Street. She had left home ten days before, and despite diligent search, no trace could be found of her. She was 41 years of age.

"A GENTLEMAN ON THE ROAD"

AND WHAT BECAME OF HIM.

George Swan, who naively described himself as "a gentleman on the road," was charged at the private residence of Superintendent Andrews, at Halesworth, on Sunday afternoon, and asked for relief. He was put in the cellarage, and relieving officer. He, however, insolently declined to accept assistance at the Workhouse, and demanded what he termed "proper relief." The Superintendent then offered to give him a night's rest in the cell, and next morning, the story being repeated before the Halesworth Magistrates, the Superintendent's offer was renewed, Swan unceremoniously relegated to Ipswich Goal for 14 days' hard labour on the charge of "begging alms."

ALLEGED HORSE STEALING BY IPSWICH MEN.

SERIOUS CHARGE AT COLCHESTER.

On Friday, at Colchester Police Court, Arthur Sparke, alias Jones, a plumber, and Walter Sparke, a builder, both of Purplett Street, Ipswich, were charged on remand with having stolen, on 29th September, a horse, cart, and harness, the property of Charles Rose Stanford, auctioneer, of High Street.—Mr. Jones, for the prosecution, said that with the assistance of the police Mr. Stanford had recovered the horse, which he thought would justify the Magistrates in committing the prisoners for trial to Quarter Sessions on a charge of horse stealing, and he (Mr. Jones) would prefer a further charge of conspiracy against them.—Mr. Ridley, for the defence, said that, while admitting the prisoners guilty, but both prisoners were committed to the Borough Quarter Sessions for trial, bail being allowed.

CONFESSION OF A DOUBLE MURDER.

At the Bootle (Cumberland) Police Court, on Saturday, Mary Harrison, wife of Thomas Harrison, was committed for trial on the charge of murdering her two children, Thomas, aged 7, and Mary, aged 4, and John Harrison, aged three months. The following confession by the prisoner was given in evidence:—"On Friday morning I murdered my two children down stairs soon after my husband had left the house. I got a step ladder, with Hannah Mary and the baby in my arms, and I took the latter with them. I left them in the water until they were dead. I wanted to drown myself, but I could not. I had was not deep enough. I had my nightdress and chemise on, and the children had theirs on. This was done before Mary Harrison was brought downstairs. I took Hannah Mary to go to school. I have been troubled in my mind for the last three years, having felt in my mind that all was not right, however, which I think Mary Harrison that I was going to drown both. She cried bitterly, and said 'Oh, mamma, don't.' I now sincerely regret what I have done such a rash act. I hope the Lord will forgive me."

PROPOSED FREE LIBRARY FOR BURY

THE TOWN TO BE POLLED.

To a meeting of the Bury St. Edmund's Town Council on Tuesday, the Sanitary Committee reported, with whom Mr. J. G. Oliver is chairman) recommended the Council that steps be taken to poll the town as to the adoption of the Public Libraries Acts as an early date. This resolution has been unanimously agreed to in Committee, and others also adopted were, "That in the event of the Act being adopted, it be adopted by the Provision Market be, if possible, utilised for that purpose;" also, "That it is recommended, if the Acts be adopted, that a rate of 1d. in the £ be levied for the purpose." Alderman Ridley seconded, and the Deputy-Mayor explained that the cost of adopting the Public Libraries Acts would, at the present time, exceed a rate of one penny in the £.—The Council adopted the report.

THE LEICESTER WATER FAMINE.

A SERIOUS POSITION.

There is no relief in the serious condition of affairs at Leicester from the failure of the supply of the ordinary sources of water supply, and although there is a good opportunity for clearing out the bottoms of the reservoirs, the Corporation have not yet begun the work under the present critical circumstances. Efforts are being made to provide further auxiliary supplies, and in the event of the drought continuing, proposals have ordered the suspension of the sinking of a shaft where water was found, in order to pump it into the mains as soon as possible, that shaft is 10ft. square on made-up ground 40ft. deep, and lined only with planks kept back by struts from timbers, but there is no provision whatever for keeping out surface water, and the bulk of the supply comes through a gravel bed from the north, at a depth of about 15ft. This shaft is 150ft., but there was no time left to do more than 40ft. The forcing of such water direct into the mains is regarded with some misgiving, and every day adds to the seriousness of the position.

SAD FATALITY NEAR WICKHAM MARKET.

ANOTHER FALL FROM A STACK.

Mr. Walter Brooke, deputy coroner for the Liberty of St. Etheldreda, held an inquest at Hacheston on Monday on the body of William Airey, agricultural labourer, aged 61 years, who died on Saturday morning from injuries received by falling from a stack.—Mr. Geo. Walter, farmer, Hacheston, stated that deceased was in his employ for two years, and had worked 25 years. He was always a steady man. Last Thursday morning deceased was thrashing wheat, and deceased was stacking the straw. Witness was near the engine, when he heard somebody call out that deceased was off the stack. Witness went to him, and found him lying on his stomach with his head doubled under him. Witness turned him over, put his head straight, and loosened his neckerchief. Deceased was very black in the face, and unconscious. He was conscious on Friday, and in reply to a question as to how the accident happened, said witness the straw twisted round him first, and he went over backwards.—Arthur Barham, who was assisting on the stack, corroborated.—Dr. Cross deposed that when he last saw the deceased on the stack he was pulling a bough down.—Mr. John Cordy Noe, surgeon, of Wickham Market, stated that deceased died from concussion of the brain and spinal cord.—Verdict, "Accidental death."

SEARCHING FOR GAME AT REDGRAVE.

George Chapman, labourer, of Redgrave, was charged at Eye Town Hall with trespassing in search of game on Redgrave on the 27th ult. He pleaded guilded guilty, and after gamekeeper Arthur Foreman had given evidence, he was fined, with costs, 10s.

DEATH FROM PARALYSIS NEAR THETFORD.

Mr. E. Trickham, the station-master at Barnham, near Thetford, was on Saturday morning seized with paralysis, and never recovered consciousness, but expired during the afternoon. He had been many years employed by the Great Eastern Railway Company.

SMUGGLING ON A G.E.R. STEAMER.

DEAR TOBACCO AT HARWICH.

On Saturday morning at Harwich Guildhall, John Rogers, gun-fitter, Birmingham, a passenger by the G.E.R. Continental steamer Copenhagen, to smuggling 2½ lbs. of cavendish tobacco, and was fined stogie value, and costs amounting to £1 3s. 9d., which he paid.

FATAL STACK ACCIDENT AT CAPEL ST. MARY.

An inquest was held at the White Horse Inn, Capel St. Mary, on Tuesday, touching the death of Charles Allen, aged 53, a farm labourer. Deceased was engaged thatching a stack on Mr. Goodchild's farm, and while so employed he missed his footing and fell to the ground. He was conveyed home, but died later in the day.—Mr. John Muriel, surgeon, Hadleigh, said the deceased had received a fracture of the spine.—Verdict, "Accidental death."

SUDDEN DEATH OF A CLAYDON SCHOOLMASTER.

APOPLEXY THE CAUSE.

The Ipswich County Coroner (Mr. A. F. Vallancy) has held an inquest at Claydon, on the body of Josiah Last, aged 53, retired schoolmaster. On Friday morning he complained of pain in the back of his head. Dr. Cheley, of Ipswich, was sent for, and found him dead. About 10 years ago he had a slight paralytic seizure, which had left his right arm affected.—Dr. E. P. Norman, of Needham, gave evidence that death was due to apoplexy from a rupture of a blood-vessel on the brain, and a verdict was returned accordingly.

EXCITING EXPERIENCE OF AN ÆRONAUT.

The London aronaut, Mr. Stanley Spencer, went up in a balloon at Bristol on Wednesday, with the intention of making a parachute descent. The damp state of the atmosphere and the rain, however, overweighted the balloon, and when only about 200ft. up it commenced descending with great velocity, and struck roof and housetops. Ultimately it struck the roof of a house, and Mr. Spencer was able to descend through the upper windows. He had some bruises and scratches, but they were attended to at the infirmary. The balloon was recovered a mile and a half away.

CRIME IN NORFOLK.

The Chief Constable has submitted to the Norfolk Joint Committee an abstract of the criminal returns for the quarter ending 31st August, which showed that of felonies there were 96 cases, against 96, and misdemeanors 626, and of informations laid against publichouses and beerhouses 2, total 725. The above abstract shows a decrease of 2 in the felonies, a decrease of 5 in the vagrancy column, and a decrease of 17 in the misdemeanours, when compared with the corresponding quarter of 1893. The number of licensed houses has been satisfactory, being in the ratio of 65 to every 100 cases reported to your constabulary. The report was adopted at the last County Council meeting.

PREACHING WHILE DRUNK AT BUNGAY.

A HALESWORTH SHOEMAKER FINED.

Walter Tibnam, shoemaker, of Halesworth, was brought before Mr. H. Rider Haggard, at Ditchingham House, on Saturday, charged by P.C. Goldsmith Mayhew with being found drunk on Saturday evening in Earsham Street, Bungay. Defendant pleaded not guilty, but admitted that he had had a few drinks, and was fined 10s., with a payment of 8s. per week, complainant to have the custody of the children.

A HARLESTON AGRICULTURAL APPEAL DISMISSED.

His Honour Judge Eardley Wilmot, sitting at Harleston County Court on Monday, was called upon to hear an appeal in the case of Forster Holmes, formerly appointed under the Agricultural Holdings Act, against an award of Mr. Simpson, the umpire appointed under the Act, by which he was mulcted in £20 compensation in connection with a farm at Morningthorpe and Fritton—Mr. Grosser (instructed by Messrs. Mills and Reeve) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Wilson (instructed by Messrs Garrod and Wilson) for Commander Holmes.—Mr. Wilson submitted that an appeal did not lie, his learned friend (Mr. Grosser for the appellant) did not amount to £100.—His Honour dismissed the appeal.

IPSWICH BLUE COAT SCHOOL.

EXHIBITION OF LAUNDRY WORK.

During the summer months the elder girls attending this school have received lessons in laundry work from Mrs. S. Adams, and an exhibition of the work done was given on Wednesday morning at the school. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. A. Bevan, Mrs. Dan Bergh, Mr. D. O. Wollaston, the Rev. W. J. Carrould, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bevan, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Burton, Miss Franks, Miss Mills, and Mrs. Ridout. The girls gave an exhibition of the washing, starching, and ironing of articles, and their work reflected great credit both on Mrs. Adams and her pupils. The girls who had obtained the greatest number of marks were presented with prizes by Dr. and the Rev. A. W. Van Den Berg addressed a few encouraging remarks to them.

HARTISMERE WORKHOUSE LABOUR MASTER.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD ASSENTS ITS AUTHORITY.

On Monday, at the meeting of the Hartismere Board of Guardians, the Rev. T. Holt Wilson in the chair, a letter was read from the Local Government Board refusing to sanction the appointment of a young man and his wife, for whom Mr. Hacker, of Eye, has for 25 years of age, and requesting that the Board proceed to a fresh election.—The Chairman proposed, and Mr. Newstead seconded, that a letter be sent to the Local Government Board sanctioning the re-appointment of Mr. and Mrs. Wright, of Eye, as resident officer of health for the Rishangles District, at a salary of £10 per annum.

HARD LABOUR FOR WIFE BEATER.

BRUTALITY AT HAVERHILL.

Samuel Suckling, of Haverhill, was charged at Haverhill Petty Sessions on Monday with assaulting his wife, for whom he had separation Order obtained, asking the Bench to make an order for a judicial separation.—The wife stated that the assault took place on Friday, when defendant came to the house where she was sitting, and hitting her on the face, giving her two black eyes.—The husband denied this, and said the blackness was caused by the woman falling on the table, and that she was drunk.—The complainant indignantly repudiated this assertion.—The defendant said he had lived away from his wife for 24 years, and had only come back last Monday.—The Bench, on the evidence before them, committed the defendant to prison to goal for one month's hard labour. A judicial order of separation was made. He was also bound over to keep the peace for six months, himself in £10 and in consideration of the worthy object for which it was intended to be used. For some time the idea of such a benefit has been in the minds of the members of the Directors, and it will prove a most valuable acquisition to the resources of the Asylum. Mr. A. M. White, late Master of the Institution, kindly conveyed the property free of charge.

AGRICULTURE IN SUFFOLK.

FARMS LET RENT FREE.

Writing to the Live Stock Journal Mr. James Youngman, of Charsfield, says:—How well the Michaelmas auctions up to the present have gone! Lots of farms have been sold, and at good prices. We are beaten in the wheat-growing competition for the present, but we must be tried now? Animal farming is our hope rather than agriculture. Large farms must more and more be for animals than for corn. Small farms must be for corn rather than stock. The certificate of a medical man. Her son, Mr. D. J. Fell, was naturally much grieved at the loss of his mother, and, besides once taking the long journey, kept himself informed of the patient's condition by correspondence with the attending physician and Inspector G. D. Power, of the G.E.R. Company's police, who was acting as friend in need. In consequence of the reasonable letter he journeyed to Ipswich on Saturday, and on Sunday morning received his mother from the Asylum, where she was conveyed at once to the house of Mr. Power, where she rested preparatory to taking train for Liverpool on Monday morning. Mrs. Mills's health had evidently undergone a trying ordeal, but she was thoroughly composed. Captain Mills is believed to be still at Antwerp.

MONSTROUS CONDUCT OF A FATHER.

At Bootle, on Monday, John Murphy was sent to goal for two months for cruelty to his infant son. It was stated that the prisoner had neglected and kicked the child, and that he had saturated her clothes with paraffin and threatened to burn her to death.

SUICIDE OF A GIRL.

A girl named Gertrude Wright, aged 14 years, committed suicide by poisoning herself at Grimsby on Tuesday. She was found suspended from a nail in the yard at the back of the house. No motive can be assigned.

MISHAP TO A PASSENGER TRAIN.

FIVE CARRIAGES OFF THE LINE.

While a passenger train from Hamilton was nearing Glasgow on Wednesday morning one of the carriages in the centre left the rails, and was dragged along with the others behind it toppled over on the line. Singularly enough the passengers in the carriages were in the four carriages, which kept the rails, and no one was injured, although the guard had a very narrow escape. The carriages which left the rails were badly smashed.

STEAMER WRECKED ON THE SCOTTISH COAST.

LIFE-RESCUE OF TWENTY-ONE PERSONS.

On Wednesday the steamer Chicago, of Sunderland, 2,381 tons gross, with a cargo of cement and wine, ran on the rocks near Slain's Castle, Aberdeenshire. The Peterhead lifeboat and rocket crews succeeded in rescuing twenty-one persons, the captain and three men remaining on board. She will probably become a total wreck. The vessel struck on the rocks with a large hole in the fore compartment of the hold.

CHILDREN KILLED ON THE RAILWAY.

A shocking accident occurred on Wednesday on the Great Western Railway at Cardiff. Two children named William Blick and James Rees, aged eight and nine respectively, were on their way to school and attempted to cross the railway as a shunting cut. They stood aside to allow a goods train to pass, and did not notice the Irish express coming in the opposite direction. They were both knocked down by the express and killed instantly, being terribly mutilated.

IPSWICH CORPORATION COMMITTEES.

A WISE REFORM.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Ipswich Town Council Mr. Goddard moved, "That it be an instruction to the Selection Committee, in making their nominations for next year, to limit the number of members of the Council on each Committee to nine, including the Mayor." The Committees, he said, were getting very unwieldy, and a reduction was necessary.—Mr. E. Packard, who had frequently urged the reform, rose for this reason, seconded, and the proposition was carried.

UNDER THE HAMMER.

DEBENHAM.

On Wednesday evening, Mr. S. A. Turner submitted to competition two lots of property, at the Red Lion Inn, Debenham, by direction of the representatives of the late Mr. Roger Page. The first, a freehold property of in two dwellings, let at £8 10s. per annum, realised £73 10s. Mr. Harry Howes was the purchaser. Solicitors: Messrs. J. & H. G. Cobbold.—At the same time a very desirable freehold property situated on the Down Row, now in the occupation of Dr. French, rental of £16 per annum, realised £102 10s. Mr. T. W. Last. Solicitors: Messrs. Mayhew and Sons, Saxmundham.

SAD DEATH OF AN IPSWICH SEPTUAGENARIAN.

A FATAL FALL.

A man named William Girling, aged 73, living at 128, Crown Street, died suddenly in his house about four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. On the 1st September, deceased, who was a widower, who has been living alone, called a coal porter passing by, who found the poor old man lying on the floor, and unable to raise himself. The coal porter, Robert Clarke, whose name is Robert Clarke, lifted him on to his bed, and informed the deceased's daughter-in-law of her father's condition. Deceased attended to the old man deceased, who was put to bed, and a doctor sent for. He remained in bed till death ensued, being under the care of a nurse.

BURIED ALIVE.

SHOCKING AFFAIR IN RUSSIA.

A St. Petersburg correspondent of the Standard telegraphs: A horrible case of burial alive occurred recently at Lioobayn, not far from St. Petersburg. A peasant girl named Praskovia Ivanova Lebedeva, who had presumably died, and, after the usual services, was being buried, when the grave-digger were startled by sounds of moaning proceeding from the coffin. Instead, however, of instantly breaking it open, they rushed off to find a clergyman, and returned with him when other arrived and broke open the shell the unhappy inmate was already the corpse she had been supposed to be a living woman. It is believed, however, that the girl could have saved life at the last moment. The body was half turned in the coffin, the left hand, having escaped its bandages, being under the cheek.

UNGRATEFUL SONS OF HARTISMERE

COMPELLED TO MAINTAIN MOTHERS.

Henry John Elsey, a hedgrave "small holder," was summoned to the Eye Town Hall, on Monday, to show cause why he should not contribute towards the maintenance of his mother, who is in the Union, and who is unable to the common fund of the Hartismere Union. The defendant admitted that he was in constant work, 5s. per week, and had only himself to keep, but as he was 60 years old he did not think he ought to be asked to help his mother, who was 82 years old. The Board ordered the defendant to pay the 2s. with 8s. costs, and in consideration of his age, the amount of his weekly contribution was reduced from 1s. to 6d.

FIGHT IN AN IPSWICH PUBLIC HOUSE.

MAGISTRATES DETERMINE TO SUPPORT LICENSED VICTUALLERS.

On Monday Edward Robert Winson, labourer, Stoke Street, and Thomas Robert Abbott, labourer, Albion Court, appeared before the Ipswich Justices for refusing to quit the Bull's Head Inn. The first-named pleaded not guilty, but Thomas Abbott admitted the charge. The previous Monday night the defendants entered the bar of the public-house, and before many minutes had elapsed they directed their attention to each other, and proceeded to fight. The landlord (Mr. Bunting) insisted upon their leaving, but, without listening to his orders, the defendants continued fighting. Unable to get rid of his disorderly customers, Mr. Bunting called in the police, on whose appearance Winson and Abbott stood refractory. The Magistrates were determined to support licensed victuallers who endeavoured to conduct their houses properly, and they fined Winson 40s. with 8s. 3d. costs, or 21 days.—The defendant chose the alternative.—The other man was fined 20s. in his absence, 10s. 6d., with 2s. 3d. costs, or 14 days.

SUICIDE IN THE FOREIGN OFFICE.

A SENSATIONAL AFFAIR.

A great sensation was caused at the Foreign Office on Wednesday afternoon by the suicide of a British Consul, which took place in a room of one of the offices within the building. Mr. Patrick Henderson, F.R.G.S., her Majesty's Consul at Cadiz, was engaged in consultation with Mr. Foley, private secretary to Lord Kimberley. During a pause in the conversation, whilst Mr. Foley's attention was otherwise engaged, Mr. Henderson raised a revolver to his head, and before his purpose could be divined or averted, shot himself through the brain. He was carried into one of those persons who were within hearing, and an immediate rush was made to the scene of the occurrence. Dr. Gibbons was promptly summoned, and a doctor soon arrived at the Foreign Office.

A SECOND FATALITY

was almost caused by the collision, and with which the summons was obeyed, for the cab conveying the doctor was over-turned at the door of the Foreign Office, though happily without serious injury to any occupant. On a medical examination being made of the extent of Mr. Henderson's injuries it was found that the ball had entered the head, and must have proved fatal to be helpless. After the wound had been temporarily dressed the unfortunate gentleman was conveyed in a cab to the Charing Cross Westminster Hospital, where he died shortly before five o'clock.

THETFORD VESTRY MEETING.

AN INTERESTING STORY.

Rev. Philip H. Davis, Congregational minister, writes from Thetford to the Daily News:—"The old borough of Thetford was thrown into excitement on Tuesday, on the gate of St. Cuthbert's Church was a notice a few days ago calling a vestry meeting at nine o'clock. At that hour the vestry was crowded, and the church is empty. After waiting some minutes I was on the point of leaving, when the assistant overseer, accompanied by a lady, appeared, and announced that the vestry had only had come. Finding only myself as a ratepayer present, he despatched the lad to fetch the assistant overseer (one of those who do the duties of a baker) who had signed the notice convening the meeting. In a little while the lad returned, and said

MAKING IPSWICH HISTORY.

MEMORABLE MEETING OF THE TOWN COUNCIL.

DECISION TO PURCHASE CHRISTCHURCH PARK.

SPIRITED AND INTERESTING DEBATE.

The meeting of the Ipswich Town Council, over which his Worship the Mayor (Mr. S. R. Annes) presided, on Wednesday, will long be remembered in the municipal annals of this very ancient borough. Great municipal annals of this very ancient borough. Great historical events have sometimes occurred in the capital of Suffolk in times past, many of which have been handed down to posterity in indelible characters. The question of purchasing the fine open space known as Christchurch Park will undoubtedly also be remembered as being associated with the martial operations in Suffolk of a forgotten past, with the granting of a municipal Charter, or the splenic strife of an election at the hustings; but it nevertheless marks an epoch in Ipswich history when the representatives of the people had the courage of their convictions and the independence of character to vote in favour of increasing the pleasurable facilities and promoting the health of the inhabitants, even at the expense of annoying many of their constituents and probably losing their seats on the Council. It is no light task for a corporate body to fly in the teeth of its masters—the people who elect them—with a public proposal to extend direct taxation, and with the certainty of causing offence to a considerable minority. The portion of history made in connection with the borrowing of money will bear favourable comparison with that of very many past years. The history of the scheme for purchasing and the noble grounds of Christchurch Park is too recent to need recapitulation, save that at a meeting held two months ago the Council was authorised its Estates Committee to buy not less than 50 acres of the park for a sum not exceeding £16,000, and that the whole question be referred to the Committee to settle the boundaries and other details. Meanwhile a petition had been numerously signed and a public meeting held in opposition to the proposal; while interest in the ultimate action of the Town Council grew keener as the day of finally settling the matter approached. It was an auspicious occasion for the members at Wednesday's meeting, and the debate, which extended over nearly four hours, was attentively listened to throughout by over a hundred ratepayers, representative of all classes of the community, who were accommodated with seats in the Council Chamber. Doubtless realising the protracted deliberation which would inevitably ensue on so vital a question, the Town Council had very wisely placed the matter at the first item but one on the agenda, so that Aldermen and Councillors were afforded an opportunity of airing their verbosity ad lib. In compliance with the resolution referred to the

SECURING TO THE TOWN FOR EVER

to the Council as follows:—"After going carefully over the ground, have settled the boundaries of that portion of Christchurch Park proposed to be purchased, as shown by the pink tint on the plan accompanying this report, the area comprised within such boundaries being 71 acres, at the price remaining at £16,000. The vendors are also to convey to the Corporation sufficient powers to make a carriage drive from the park to a road, 40ft. wide, as an approach to the Park from the existing entrance in Soane Street, the precise position of such approach to be settled between the Committee and the cost of the sewer in it to be borne by the vendors. It is stipulated that the Corporation shall erect a suitable fence along the northern boundary, that the property shall be used for the purpose only of a public park, and that no dwelling-houses or other buildings shall be erected thereon, except such lodges, shelters, horticultural buildings, or other erections as shall reasonably be required for the park."

PURPOSES OF PUBLIC PLEASURE GROUNDS,

and that nothing shall be done thereon which shall be a nuisance, annoyance, or disturbance to the neighbours, the Council, or the occupiers of any neighbouring premises, or in any way injurious thereto. A contract has been prepared conditional upon the Council carrying out the terms set forth."—The report having been formally received, Mr. E. T. Read, who said he appeared as one of the inhabitants of the town, and not as a councillor, stepped up to the aldermanic table and asked permission to present a petition. The worthy deputy of the Tower Ward respectfully craved the indulgence of the meeting, and read the petition, which was signed by 2,000 electors, although Mr. Cattermole said there were 13,000, and he intended to vote against the scheme. The petition was then laid on the table, and Mr. Read was a ratepayer, and having been assured that he was, and Mr. Syer, another ratepayer, having added that

ALL THE PETITIONERS WERE HOUSEHOLDERS,

Mr. Ruffle said he thought the petition should be entertained as to the bona fides of the petition. He therefore moved that the Town Clerk be asked to check the names of the petitioners, and present a report to the next meeting of the Council.—Alderman Josselyn seconded the proposition, and remarked that evidence—Alderman Josselyn was quickly on his feet again, and, having silenced a threatening interruption, said he thought the petition should be with us now entitled to move a resolution which stood in his name with the object of defeating the purchase of the park. Alderman Josselyn called contention and called upon Ald. Cowell to move the adoption of the report. That gentleman, in a calm and deliberate manner, and with a pleasant smile, replied with loyalty and a feeling of love for the old borough, frequently evoked applause as he reviewed the circumstances of the case. The Estates Committee, he continued, after the last meeting proceeded to Christchurch Park, and decided that unless they could obtain a park over which the public had unrestricted right to Christchurch Park in all its beauty—they would not be satisfied. (Hear, hear.) Having arrived at that determination they had secured and mentioned other details in connection with the scheme, he argued that the Committee had done good work and deserved the

HARVEST IN THE PENN DISTRICT.

HORSES IN THE NORTH.

TENDENCY OF WHEAT PRICES.

[By Our Special Correspondent.]

Last week I spoke about the harvest as a part of the year's farming which had been done with and almost forgotten. I had in my mind, of course, the particular neighbourhood in which I reside. I was surprised a few days ago on reaching the Fen country in the course of a railway ride to find that some of the agriculturists in that locality were busy as bees in carting something which in the distance looked uncommonly like wheat, while in other parts the crops were still safely held on the field of them. In my ignorance I could not help feeling surprised that there should be so much difference in what may almost be described as adjoining counties. When, however, I looked at the character of the soil and considered the flatness of the country, with dykes full of water which had been drained off the land, I could understand that there would be a difference in many respects between Cambridgeshire and Suffolk. I subsequently had further concurrence in the opinion given utterance to by a companion who, looking out of the window on each side of the railway carriage, said he should not care to farm in that country. "You have," he added, "a good deal of heavy land still our friends in the boggy country cannot have much more to complain of in regard to the difficulties experienced in the present day in carrying on farming with ANY IDEA OF PROFIT.

I don't know anything much more interesting to one having a knowledge of farming than a long railway ride. The journey is not anything like so tedious to him as it is to ordinary folks who have not the eye to see the difference between one soil and another, or to distinguish between the condition of the crops as compared with one locality and another. I took advantage of the opportunity, as I did myself, to observe how and then by the liberality of the Great Eastern Railway Company of taking a run into the Midlands, and I found the journey an exceedingly interesting one. When you get into the lowlands you might see horses at work in the fields, as you do in Suffolk, with what is called a "feather" than you care about, or are accustomed to, and various matters connected with farming operations which you might not like; but, on the other hand, there were some things which I saw that were worthy of observant eye. For instance, the further I got on the road the more general I found was the use of corrugated iron sheets as a covering for the stacks, in the place of the old-fashioned straw, and rather expensive process of thatching with straw. If we may trust to appearances there is a growing feeling in various parts of the country in favour of this kind of

PROTECTION FOR THE STACKED CORN.

The appearance is fairness in favour, and that the iron sheets can be utilised in various ways when not in use for the stacks as a temporary covering for pigs and other stock, and if taken care of can be used year after year for the purpose mentioned. There was one thing which must have impressed my fellow-travellers from Suffolk, viz., that there was a good deal more money floating about in the black country than we are in the habit of seeing when we are knocking about in our purely agricultural districts. The people certainly have more money to spend in the country which abounds with coal mines. The miners earn a good deal, and they seem to be the boys to spend their earnings. The whole district is full of public-houses, and there is altogether more "go" than we are accustomed to in our own more phlegmatic part of the country. Of course there is plenty of smoke; on either side of the line there are enormous shafts indicating the spots where labour is carried on, and the trains are full of men pit carrier in the day and were very busy in the midst of the bowels of the earth. You have not much chance of forming an opinion of what the farming is like in those localities, as you are rushed by the train home through a district much of which is taken up with an industry so altogether different from agriculture—an industry that may perhaps be more profitable though not nearly so pleasant. One thing which impresses a cosmopolitan like myself is the extraordinary quality of stone revealed in the soil of the cuttings for the railway, and it seems almost impossible that should be able to exist in a locality where, to all appearance, there are only a few inches of soil to hide the enormous beds of solid stone; but, as a matter of fact, big trees luxuriate, and as you pass through Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire the vegetation in places is delightful. I shall never forget the charm of the short railway ride from one of the branch stations into Matlock. The scenery on either side of the line was indescribably beautiful. The trees were in their prime, the immense hills being just tinged with the varied autumnal hues. The effect of the ride was panoramic; every now and then the train would dash into a tunnel for a second or two, and each time you came into the open there was a delightful change in the scenery, and a new and still more beautiful picture than the last, till you reached Matlock, and to describe the beauties of the latter place you would want the pen of the most gifted scene-writer that ever lived. Perhaps I contrast the scenery with the "go" and "sensation"—I know no other more expressive term—which must have been experienced by my fellow-travellers as well as myself. There was first of all the fit Fen country, then the stoney, and next the black, and at the end of it certainly the most beautiful part of the whole (pictures still in my eye) views obtainable in England, not even excepting the Isle of Wight. I must not, however, attempt to describe the glory of the hills, so high that, to quote the words of Mr. Ruskin, you have to look twice to see the top of them." If I were to attempt anything of the kind I should only betray my utter helplessness in this respect. There was only one thing I saw in the course of the journey which caused anything like a feeling of regret, and that was to witness the

used in public conveyances at Nottingham. I love a horse, especially a good one, and I confess that a pang of regret seized me that horses should be allowed to work in the bent-legged, broken-kneed, half-starved condition of the poor wretches I saw near the Northern Railway Station in that town. There are the eyes of the inspector of the N.S.P.C.A.? I am not a part of his business to bring the matter to which I have alluded under the notice of the Executive of the Society in London. I suppose it is time I went on to refer to other matters having more directly upon practical agriculture. I have not left myself much time, after all, there is not much to talk about, of a pleasant nature at all events. With regard to the price of wheat the

TENDENCY IS STILL DOWNWARD.

Since I last called attention to the matter the average has fallen something like 1s. 6d. per quarter, last week's average being 19s. 3d. According to the Standard "At this year's low price 5,000,000 acres returned as having been sold during the week in the markets in which the statistics are collected. Even supposing a case in which there are five quarters of corn to the acre, the total value would only £4 15s. per acre at the present average price, unless he sells his straw, which is also very cheap now. The price of 480 lb. of wheat is now 5s. 5d. less than that of one of barley. Previous to 1879 the wheat was commonly worth a shilling or 2s. 30s. a quarter more than barley, and in the first half of the century was frequently 30s. or more, and occasionally 40s. in favour of wheat." According to the latest returns it seems that allowing 20 bushels an acre as the average yield of the wheat crop, the produce of the 1,977,304 acres grown in Great Britain and Ireland this year will be, in round figures, 7,415,000 qrs., or 1,051,000 qrs. more than last year's crop. But there is probably less wheat fit for food in this year than there was last year, and we shall, therefore, need to import at least as much during as we imported in 1893-4, viz., 22,350,000 qrs. including flour. The consumption at six bushels per head of the population, including seed, will be about 29,190,000 qrs., and if 6,500,000 be allowed for native wheat fit for bread and seed, imports of 22,500,000 qrs. are about the amount required. Took exactly realising all that was expected of them, the absence of smashing preventing that development which was anticipated in the month of August. However, there is plenty of time for the crop to improve, and although the latter may be, especially as there is a good deal of damaged corn, which will have to be utilised in some form or other, as in the present condition of things it can hardly be given away. Nevertheless there is pretty general outcry as to the disease amongst potatoes, which has developed itself since the recent damp weather. They are reported to be rather a glut in the market, but there is some prospect of their being cheaper later on.

FRIENDLY SOCIETY NOTES.

BRO. W. ORFORD WHITE, J.P.

IPSWICH DISTRICT FORESTERS.

Most heartily do we congratulate Bro. Wm. Orford White, the Deputy Grand Master of the Manchester Unity of Oddfellows, on his elevation to the Ipswich Magisterial Bench. His long connection with the town, genial disposition, and the general esteem in which he is held, fully entitle Bro. White to be placed on the Commission of the Peace for the town. Indeed it was a matter of surprise to a large number of Ipswich people that Bro. White had not received the coveted honour when the last batch of appointments were announced. However, better late than never, and the thousands of friendly society members will join in an interesting statement of the excellent work which this juvenile court has accomplished since its formation in 1880. During its young life the branch has enrolled 331 members, who contributed amongst them the sum of £251. Of this amount £79 was disbursed as sick benefit; £7 10s. was paid on account of funerals, and a balance in hand of about £70 remains. The society has also done good work as a replenishing source for the senior organisation, to which body no less than 62 juvenile members were transferred.

Nothing succeeds like success is evidently applicable to the great Manchester Unity of Oddfellows, which, in its recently-issued annual statement for the year ended 31st December last, records a further addition to its capital of £278,274 8s. The returns show a membership of 822,735. Of the receipts for contributions and levies to the enormous sum of £800,339 1s. 4d.; interest £276,211 12s. 2d.; admission £4,788 7s. 5d.; making the splendid total of £1,081,309 0s. 11d.

The other side of the account is equally interesting. Sick benefits absorbed a sum of £662,736 19s. 2d., for funerals £140,297 13s. 9d. was paid, making a total of £803,034 12s. 11d., leaving a nett increase for the year of £278,274 8s. The aggregate the figures are colossal, and doubles loud brethren will be interested in the figures under the various accounts of the Unity. Contributions:—Sick and Funeral Funds, £1,018,300 0s. 11d.; Management Funds of Lodges, £286,619 9s. 9d.; Widow and Orphan Societies, £4,788 7s. 5d.; Past Grand Lodges, £2,424 9s. 1d.; Juvenile Societies, £32,029 13s.; Benevolent or other Funds, £15,386 18s. 6d.; total, £1,468,397 16s. 3d.

Management expenses and sick and funeral benefits are tabulated as follows:—Sick and Funeral Funds, £803,034 12s. 11d.; Management Funds of Lodges, £286,302 9s. 6d.; Widow and Orphan Societies, £6,031; Widow and Orphan Societies, £434,571 19s. 3d.; Past Grands' Lodges, £10,017 17s. 2d.; Juvenile Societies, £38,867 5s. 10d.; Benevolent or other Funds, £15,386 18s. 6d.; total, £1,540,409,10s. 4s. 6d. Oddfellows of the Manchester Unity must feel a sense of gratification at the continued and phenomenal prosperity of their order, the power and influence for good of which is felt in almost every part of the globe where Englishmen do congregate.

We are asked to state that the annual Friendly Society church parade at Needham Market will take place on the 21st inst. Although somewhat late in the season, there is every reason to anticipate a repetition of the successes of the arrangements in course of preparation.

Ipswich district of the Ancient Order of Foresters held its annual meeting in the small hall of the Co-operative Rooms, Ipswich, under the presidency of D.C.R. Bro. F. Barker (secretary of Court 6,223), D.C.S.R. Bro. W. Canham (2,332) occupying the vice-chair. Twenty-three delegates, representing 16 Courts, were present, including the Deputy-Treasurer (P.C.R. Bro. W.S. Clark), and the District Secretary (P.H.C.R. Bro. Geo. Crickmer). The position of the district as compared with the previous year showed a decided improvement, as on August 21st the district numbered 16 Courts, with 4,919 financial members. The funeral claims, it was stated, amounted for the two quarters for £630 as compared with £1,000 for the corresponding half of last year.—Bro. B. Pollard, P.C.R., submitted the reports of the Management Committee, and the United Courts Investment Committee, which were adopted after little discussion. The Chairman and Bro. Barker, the representative of the Ipswich district at the Cambridge High Court, presented interesting reports on the High Court sittings, and were heartily thanked for their services. An application, of a character which we hope shortly to see withdrawn, from a lady member, was readily granted, as, indeed, it deserved to be, viz., that of Court 6223 to circulate a petition through the district on behalf of an afflicted member in the person of Bro. B. Thorpe.

The book examiners' reports were passed without opposition, and after the usual official appointments for the ensuing year, the district decided to hold its next meeting at Stowmarket. Several minor alterations of rules were considered, after which the following installation of District officers took place:—D.C.R., Bro. W. Canham (2332); D.S.C.R., Bro. G. Hayward (secretary 2605). Bro. Barker was cordially thanked for the manner in which he had performed the duties as D.C.R., and he was presented with a P.D.C.R. neck ribbon, and framed certificate with his name thereon.

The Eastern Star Provident Association branch "Star of Hintlesham" continues to make very satisfactory progress, and at the last quarterly meeting, held on Monday evening, at the Star Inn, Hintlesham, the sick steward's share showed a saving on the quarter of £6 10s. 7d.; while a very light sick list at Peckenham Hall also fatten a sum of £20 had been added to the funds in the bank.

EASTERN COUNTIES' LABOUR FEDERATION.

A WORD ABOUT INCREASED TAXATION.

SIR,—I notice in a contemporary that Mr. W. Brown, of the Eastern Counties' Labour Federation, has been talking to the labourers of Essex in anything but a certain sound, and very properly so. Firstly, he informed them that the agricultural depression was amongst other things, due to the landlords demanding exorbitant rents. Secondly, he informed them that rents have fallen some fifty per cent. on an average, and in many cases considerably more than that. Now, he not also know that there are plenty of farms to let to-day at 5s. per acre, and that some are actually going out at 2s. 6d. per acre. What nonsense to talk about extravagant rents as the cause of depression. Secondly, another reason he gives is bad farmers. Why, bless the man, there are farmers they don't employ labour nor yet enough manure. He blames the farmers in this reason for what in the first instance he says the landlords are responsible for, viz., that the country was frequently 30s. or more, and occasionally 40s. in favour of wheat." According to the latest returns it seems that allowing 20 bushels an acre as the average yield of the wheat crop, the produce of the 1,977,304 acres grown in Great Britain and Ireland this year will be, in round figures, 7,415,000 qrs., or 1,051,000 qrs. more than last year's crop. But there is probably less wheat fit for food in this year than there was last year, and we shall, therefore, need to import at least as much during

as we imported in 1893-4, viz., 22,350,000 qrs. including flour. The consumption at six bushels per head of the population, including seed, will be about 29,190,000 qrs., and if 6,500,000 be allowed for native wheat fit for bread and seed, imports of 22,500,000 qrs. are about the amount required. Took exactly realising all that was expected of them, the absence of smashing preventing that development which was anticipated in the month of August. However, there is plenty of time for the crop to improve, although the latter may be, especially as there is a good deal of damaged corn, which will have to be utilised in some form or other, as in the present condition of things it can hardly be given away. Nevertheless there is pretty general outcry as to the disease amongst potatoes, which has developed itself since the recent damp weather. They are reported to be rather a glut in the market, but there is some prospect of their being cheaper later on.

MEDIÆVAL ALDEBURGH.

SNATCHES OF HISTORY.

THE PREPARATIONS FOR THE ARMADA.

AN INTERESTING NARRATIVE.

During the past few months a number of improvements have been in progress at Aldeburgh, and in detailing them a correspondent incidentally remarks that while alterations are being made in the public offices in Town Council and kindred buildings many of the ancient files in their possession. These date back for more than 300 years. According to the records, it seems that the Market Cross and the Butchers' Shambles were located to the north of the Moot Hall, and that the Market Place was a large open space, paved with it to the east are all now submerged. The stretch of water under which they lie is known as the Town Gutter, and the harbour is Slaughden Bay. The quaint, overhanging old-timbered Moot Hall has a very long history attached to it, as appears from documents lying in the old chest safe. There are many charters granted by ancient kings and queens in England, and these papers are in an good condition for their first property. Of this annual records all point to the importance of Aldeburgh in the Middle Ages. Among the forfeits payable to the Town Council are those for contributions from large fleets that used to sail to the fisheries at Faroe and Iceland. These entries from the reigns of Elizabeth and James show Aldeburgh was an important distributing centre. A full list is recorded in the books of the ships, tonnage and crews of the different ships furnished and also what guns they carried. Some of the different "Batteries of Guns" to prevent the landing of the invaders. As the Town Council were responsible for the militia, and mustered the safest place, the ammunition for the guns was stowed away there, but it appears from the records that there was a considerable quantity of shot that were stored there, the wall gave way on one side; for a time the whole structure was in jeopardy. There are entries of expenditure for repairs to the Market Cross, and twopence for bread for women incarcerated in the Bridewell, "close by the pillory." The Borough used to return from the 17th year of Edward VI. (1547), and it had the privilege until 1832, when it was disfranchised. The members of Parliament used to make their speeches to the Town Council, and demonstrate to them the affairs of the Borough used to be in the hands of two bailiffs and twelve aldermen, corresponding with the present burgesses, the whole being a self-elected body. Ten years ago only the constitutions of Aldeburgh, Dunwich, and Orford were considered worthy to rank amongst the 94 unreformed boroughs which were the subject of a Royal Commission of enquiry, granted upon the application of Mr. Duncombe, M.P. for Yorkshire, the enquiry was the placing in the hands of the Charity Commissioners the lands of the two latter places.

THE REFORM BILL

of incorporation was issued to Aldeburgh, by which they were allowed to elect a mayor, two bailiffs, and twelve burgesses, the population amounts to little more than 2,000 inhabitants. The election of the Council is by the popular vote. So far, the corporate body has not been extravagant. For a long time there was no rate. It was only recently that a borough rate of 1s. in the £ was levied, and this was for the purpose of lighting, paving, and watering of the town. The Corporation have also undertaken, in virtue of the rate, all sanitation and cleansing of the streets. Hitherto the rates are very blessed with so little taxation, and if the authorities are as careful in the expenditure during the next 300 years of their existence as during their formation, they deserve well of the town. In view of the above particulars it will be interesting to expect regarding Aldeburgh from "White's Suffolk":—"Aldeburgh is the head of the Liberty of Hoxne, and Saxmundham County Court District, Ipswich Bankruptcy Court District, Plomesgate Hundred, Orford Inland Revenue District, Woodbridge Petty Sessional Division. Its population increased from 504 in 1801, to 1,557 in 1841, to 1,637 in 1851, and to 2,150 in 1871, and contains 1,000 acres of land and 40 of water; the rateable value is £7,693. Thomas William Thomas Vernon Wentworth, Esq., who owns most of the soil, is lord of the manor, which passed to his family after the death of the late Earl of Stafford, in 1801. William de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, founded the Soape Priory, and in 1337 it was granted with the other possessions of that monastery to Cardinal Wolsey, for the endowment of his College at Ipswich, and soon afterwards given by Henry VIII. to Thomas Duke of Norfolk. Aldeburgh is about midway between Harwich and Yarmouth, 21 miles from each of the coasts, and the violence with which gales from the north-east to south-west blow is remarkable.

A GREAT LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

every year. Parliament was sometime ago asked for leave to construct a harbour of refuge by cutting through the peninsular strip of land, called Lantern Marshes, near Slaughden Quay, where it is scarcely 100 yards broad. The proposals were to make a new outlet, 600 feet wide from the river to the sea, with two sinuous piers. The engineer, Mr. Wyatt, estimated the cost at £60,000, but Mr. Bruff, estimated the cost at £69,000. Of this £38,600 was for cost of the piers, and the remainder outlay on the excavation works, quarries, &c. The scheme for the accommodation for several hundreds of large vessels. During the last century the ocean made great encroachments upon the coast, and the sea has undermined the Market Place and Cross. A plan of the town in 1559 proves it to have been at that time of considerable size, but the sea has since washed away the greater part of it, "a process similar to those at Yarmouth, between the town and the sea. Till the commencement of the present century

CHURCH AND HOSPITALITY AT EYE.

GENEROUS GIFTS TO THE WORKERS.

Mr. T. H. Tacon has been Mayor of Eye two years in succession, both of which have been marked by acts of generosity to the working classes. Last year, about this time, a large number of the workmen were invited to meet his worship in the Corn Hall, when a smoking concert and supper was provided, and prizes were given away. This gathering was so successful and apparently so much appreciated at the time, that the Mayor proposed to do a similar thing this year, but finding that several of those he proposed to invite preferred a gift of coal in lieu of the entertainment, he issued a handbill stating that he would give 1 ton to each of the

INHABITANTS

Saturday night to receive the names of all those who preferred a present of coal, and we understand that some 300 applications were made, many of whom received a ticket for a cwt. On Tuesday evening last, Mr. Tacon entertained at supper the whole of the members of the Suffolk constabulary stationed in Eye and its immediate neighbourhood by inviting them to a smoking concert at the Corn Hall. Sergt. Hall, Borrett, of the Horse Shoes Hotel, Eye. Superintendent Barnard presided, the vice-chair being occupied by Sergeant Taylor, and Sergt. Hall acting as croupier, being:—Constables Mills (Palgrave), Wake (Thornham), Snell (Hoxne), Hopes (Mellis), Colyer (Thrandon), Clarke (Laxfield), Eyre, Wilson, and Bloss included. Sergt.-Instructor Hogg, Mr. H. Skuffham, Mr. H. Woolsey, and Mr. W. Cooper. The room was soon gone through, Sergt. Hogg and Police-constable Clarke (a reserve man) responding for the army. The toast of the evening, "Success to the Suffolk Police," was drunk with musical honours, as was also the toast of "Donor of the Feast," with one cheer more for Mrs. Tacon. Sergt. Hall, Mr. Skuffham, Mr. Woolsey, Chairman Sergt. Taylor, Police-constables Wake, Hopes, Clarke, Mr. Skuffham, Woolsey, and Hogg. A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close at eleven o'clock.

VOLUNTARY SCHOOL QUESTION AT SUDBURY.

On Monday evening a meeting, presided over by the Rector of St. Peter's and St. Gregory's, Sudbury (the Rev. B. S. Fryer), was held at the Town Hall, to discuss the alternatives now being made in the parochial schools. Archdeacon Bompas gave an account of the position of Church education in the country, and the Chairman said the managers had been compelled to raise the school pence. The Rector said he hoped to ensure the grant, owing to the accommodation being insufficient. The cost of the alterations would be £1000. The Managers, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Cook, and the local parish schools might be placed on a sound basis, and to avoid closing the schools. He urged them, as citizens, to

TO HELP IN THE WORK.

He hoped they would not think they were going to prop up a rotten ship, for he could ensure them the schools were in a most healthy condition and most efficient. Mr. Wilkinson said the Rector's statement was not a great one. It had been said, "Why make this stir, when the parents would like a Board School?" Why, Mr. Cook, Mr. W. G. Tuck, and Mr. Read, Mr. Lockyer (gardener at Huntingfield Hall), Mr. E. Bloomfield, Mr. W. G. Tuck (brewers' operatives), only assisted by the treasurer (Mr. A. Bailey) had been happy in making their arrangements, and they had the support of the Nonconformists (applause). Mr. Cook, Jun., said (Applause.)—The Archdeacon then delivered his address, and the Rector afterwards called on Mr. H. H. Baker, Mr. Wm. Marshall, Mr. Read, Mr. Barker Stanford, and Mr. Herbert Stanford.

by the Countess of Strafbroke, while Lord Strafbroke congratulated the committee and management upon the success of the show, observing that those who brought their produce to the show felt that they had acquired the knowledge which encouraged them to make improvements in their own gardens or allotments, and they all knew that the best way was perhaps the most valuable of all, and was first class, was not forgotten. Referring to the fact that the Technical Instruction Committee of the County Council were making experiments with the view of checking disease in onion and potato crops, his lordship said the Committee in Suffolk would take experiments in different districts throughout the county, where applications were made, and he suggested to those that there should be at least two applicants from each parish, and that these applicants should send in reports from time to time to the Secretary, Mr. Sandeman, who believed that the spirited people of that locality would respond to this appeal, and he invited those who were willing to do so to hand their names to Mr. Bailey, the secretary. IPSWICH LODGE OF GOOD SHEPHERD.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Lodge of Good Shepherd, an institution which has accomplished much useful work among a certain class in Ipswich, was held in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon, under the presidency of the Mayor (Mr. S. S. Annes). He was supported by Archdeacon Wakefell, Revs. W. S. King, Yihll Arrington, A. Hayes, Mr. Charles Hermes, Mr. H. M. Cadman, and a large assembly of ladies. The Very Rev. E. Spooner and Mr. F. Cocker were unable to attend. The Hon. Sec. (Mr. Cadman) read the report, which stated that there were six girls in the Lodge on October 1st, 1893, and 30 more were received during the year. Of these 18 were sent to other homes, 8 left for longer training or medical treatment, four have been returned to friends at a distance, either as unsuitable cases or by their own wish, and 1 died. Of the latter, three were dismissed as likely to do harm to younger inmates and without desire to do better themselves, one was sent to the Home for Friendless Girls on St. Margaret's Green, and five remain in the Home. THE DARSHAM TROLLY DISASTER.

PRIMA FACIE CASE AGAINST EVERETT.

A further development in the unfortunate trolly disaster, which took place near Darsham Station on September 12th, was seen on Monday, when George Everett, the platelayer, whose alleged gross neglect of duty was responsible for the death of his two companions, George Moore and George Elsy, was brought before the Saxmundham Justices, and charged with manslaughter. It will be remembered that the prisoner already stands committed for trial to the Assizes, under the Employers' Liability Act, on the charge of causing the death of Moore. On the present occasion Mr. Ernest Jones (District Engineer), and Mr. Holden (District Loco Superintendent), Mr. Tuck, for the prosecution, briefly detailed the facts as published in the Ipswich Journal, and dealing with the prisoner's duty, he pointed out that the prisoner signed an acknowledgment of his acquaintance with the regulations of the Company, which provided that when a trolly was placed on the line a flagman should protect it three-fourths of a mile away with a red flag and detonators. The prisoner, when placed at either the wood or the gate-house for that purpose,

SHOULD HAVE CARRIED OUT THESE INSTRUCTIONS;

otherwise he was amenable to the law for the consequences of his neglect. Mr. Tuck said that he had solicited from the witnesses called on; indeed, the evidence was a reproduction of that taken at the protracted inquest held on the bodies of the deceased. He thought there was a prima facie case against Everett, and he committed him for trial to the Assizes, accepting bail, prisoner in £30 and two sureties of £10 each.

HUSBANDRY IN THE BLYTHING HUNDRED.

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION AT S. HALESWORTH.

With many societies age does not add to their charm, or raise their standard of usefulness; but this thesis is fortunately not the case as regards the Blything Hundred Farmers and Cottagers' Improvement Association, whose annual exhibition on Friday fully maintained the society's reputation, and attracted a large gathering of visitors. The show was held in a field in the middle of its kind in Suffolk, and in spite of more modern enterprises and consequently increased competition the subject is still a popular one, and continues to prosper, and exercises a fostering influence over small allotment cultivators in the neighbourhood. The judges were Mr. Alex. Cross, Holton; Mr. Heath, Mells; and Mr. Lockyer (gardener at Huntingfield Hall), Mr. E. Bloomfield, Mr. W. G. Tuck (brewers' operatives), ably assisted by the treasurer (Mr. A. Bailey), were busy in making their arrangements, and they had the support of the Nonconformists (applause.) INCENDIARISM NEAR BADLEY.

THE POLICE BAFFLED,

At Higham, a village about seven miles from Bury St. Edmund's, a stack of barley, the produce of six acres, belonging to Mr. A. G. Hawes, was discovered to be on fire on Monday evening. Strange to say, the unfortunate stack was the only one that was not safely housed within a few yards of where a stack was similarly destroyed less than a fortnight ago. The fatal fluess was away from home when the stack was first seen burning; but as he was returning, in company with Mr. W. Pollard, C.C., both noticed the flames. Information was received information of the conflagration. A telegram was despatched to Bury St. Edmund's for the Volunteer Fire Brigade, and on the arrival of the engine at Higham, all that remained of the stack, a mere heap of charred barley, was burning mass, the firemen soon set to work. Other stacks were in dangerous proximity; but they were saved. There is no doubt that the fire is of incendiary origin; but no trace of the miscreant could be discovered.

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS CASE.

On Wednesday morning a fire was discovered to have occurred in the premises occupied by Mr. C. H. Green, at Bradfield Combust, about five miles from Bury St. Edmund's. A message was despatched from Bradfield Combust to the Chief Officer of the Bury Volunteer Fire Brigade, under the command of Captain Tracy, promptly attended; but before they could arrive on the scene a portion of the roof of a granary, and a chaff-house were destroyed, as well as the produce of about 34 acres of peas, and about 30 coombs of barley. The origin of the conflagration is a mystery, but it is supposed to be attributable to an incendiary. The buildings are the property of Mr. H. Porteus Oakes, and are believed to be insured, as is also the produce belonging to the tenant. Supt. Clarke, at Bury St. Edmund's, with Police-constable Hopson, were soon on the spot to institute inquiries.

A FORMER SUFFOLK DOCTOR'S ELOPEMENT

WITH A BICKLAYER'S WIFE.

Dr. Case, a Norfolk man, and formerly practising at Elmswell, Suffolk, went to Willesden four and a half years ago, and opened a practice there. Shortly he had been married eight or nine years to a lady of great personal attractions, with whom he has lived on the most affectionate terms. Two or three years ago he made the acquaintance of a bricklayer named Parker, Mrs. Harlow, whose husband was at work at the time, and, all unknown to Mrs. Case, it is alleged an intimacy sprung up between the doctor and the woman. The matters went on until Wednesday morning in last week, when Dr. Case left his house to attend a serious case at St. Mary's Cottage Hospital, Kilburn, and returned to find that Mrs. Harlow had been removed by her husband to Paddington. Dr. Case, it is alleged, has left his home and family, and has not come there—missives that much alarmed Mrs. Case. Next day it was found that Mrs. Harlow had left Willesden

Archdeacon Wakefell moved a resolution expressing sympathy with the objects of the Institution, and urging its claims upon the support of "St. Saviour's" Lodge—a kindred Institution—to know the importance of the undertaking. Applause.) The Rev. W. S. King, in seconding the motion, spoke of the part which Sisters of Mercy now took in religious work, and rejoicing that the prejudice which existed against them was passing away. In 1857 the Rev. Charles Gay, a clergyman greatly respected, and who was a friend of Dr. Pusey, gave permission for some Sisters to work in his parish, and they were provided for them on the London Road, but a year or so after the Sisters were withdrawn, and the work was strained to withdraw the permission. At the time when he (Mr. Hayes) came to Ipswich sixteen years ago, if a Sister appeared in the street, she was looked at as Now her work was greatly approved, and even bodies like the Workhouse Committee, who had voted on Order, had two Sisters working in the town. It rejoiced in the credit of the members of these Orders that they could work without the secret sanction of London, where a policeman dare not venture alone. Cheers.) Mr. W. H.

UNIFICATION OF LONDON.

ANNIVERSARY OF PARNELL'S DEATH.

[By London Correspondents.]

FRIDAY MIDNIGHT.

Old London is disappearing bit by bit. Another relic will soon have vanished in the shape of the major portion of the houses in Southampton Buildings, High Holborn. Nearly all that remains of them, indeed, is the house, No. 34, at the corner, as you turn from picturesque Staple Inn towards Holborn. There, for some months in 1800, dwelt Charles Lamb after his awful calamity which had been perpetrated in the family by the madness of his sister Mary, and here he often had talks with Hazlett and Coleridge, and the other brilliant friends who loved to hear his witty stuttering. In a tenement, until recently adjoining the famous Birkbeck Institute—one of the first of the mechanics' institutes—had its home until more modern accommodation for it was found in Bream's buildings a few years ago. The neighbourhood is rich in historical associations. Those very houses which form the east of and immediately overlook the old Southampton House, originally the Inn of the Bishops of Lincoln, but which must not be confounded with the mansion of the Earls of Lincoln from which Lincoln's Inn derived its name. During the year 1640 a school for the children of the tenants of Southampton House a remarkable well, afterwards called Soldier's Well, whose water is said to have effected some wonderful cures both on the blind and the lame. When the buildings now being demolished were erected in 1640 this well was covered over. Recent excavations uncovered it, when it flowed with such force that a layer of concrete six feet thick had to be placed over it in order to keep it under control.

The agitation among elementary teachers in favour of secular recognition as civil servants is receiving a very much more disciplined and emphatic character. A movement is on foot having for its purpose the referring to the annual meeting of the National Union of Teachers of the question for practical effect the demand on every occasion. More than that, teachers are actually memorialising members of Parliament on the point, and urging them to use their influence in the House of Commons. If they become civil servants all questions in reference to the duration of teachers, to superannuation, and to the control of societies, would, it is contended, be settled at once. Mr. Acland is to be asked to receive a deputation on the subject. The tremendous importance of which some of the school teachers do not perhaps altogether comprehend.

For the first time in history, the population of the United Kingdom is greater than that of France. It is computed that at the present moment there are in the British Isles 100,000 more people than there are in France. During the century the population of France has increased by ten millions; that of the United Kingdom by twenty millions. In addition to that we have in those ninety years colonised Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and other spots which in another ninety years will become mighty nations. Already the population of France is not accompanied by any colonisation whatever.

The dimensions of the Metropolitan flower trade, which is greater every day, are rather hard to realise. Of course some portion of them may be gathered from the stalls of blooms on the fringes of the city, and from the aspect of the flower department of Covent Garden, but these by no means represent the total. Inquiries at branch of the business, for inquiries made at leading florists in fashionable quarters show that as a rule the more expensive blooms do not pass through the market, but are either reared in their own conservatories or are imported direct. In the matter of orchids Orchid growing, as a commercial transaction, is chiefly maintained by the high prices realised. It is stated that many a woman of fashion spends as much as £500 a year on blooms for personal decoration, individual sprays, frequently necessitates an expenditure of £500, and sometimes more. On all occasions the use of blooms is extending, and the quantities sold in the trade within the last ten years are well-nigh incredible.

Lord Rosebery will yet with the report of the Commission on the unification of London at the bottom of the table. Members of the London Radicals are resolved on demanding that he shall, immediately on Parliament reassembling, seek to give the suggestions of the report a legislative character. These gentlemen are not the kind of men who will accept a compromise that is phrase in place of a definite and specific pledge. They are men of a resolute and assertive disposition, who remember the phrases Lord Rosebery used as chairman of the London County Council, and they mean to hold him to them. Failing that, they are prepared to start a neighbouring parish, which brought him about £60 a-year. Mrs. Apthorp's private means were £312 per annum. A clear £500 a year. Not to sell out £100 of his capital,

OWING TO EXTRA EXPENSES,

and he told Mrs. Apthorp that it was impossible to keep the pony chaise. She was at first very much distressed, and then huffy. She made it quite plain that that it was a present from a relative, but he was inclined to think that it came out of his pocket.—Mr. Apthorp, in fact, that she looked your pocket?—Defendant: No; but that she used the money out of the household expenses. His wife was very fond of society, and he was not particularly fond of it himself. He was sorry to say that many rumours that had been spread about him had been traced to his wife. There were no truth in them, but he had a right to protect himself about him.—Is there any truth in the statement that you assaulted or beat your wife?—Absolutely none. Is there any truth in the statement that you were in the habit of threatening Mrs. Apthorp?—Certainly not.—Have you ever struck Mrs. Apthorp?—Not under her?—Never.—On your oath?—On my most solemn oath, never.—Do you think —I really don't know, but it looks very much like it sometimes.—Is she easy to control?—Very difficult. I should be very difficult.—Did you ever almost to live at peace with her?—Indeed I did; I most solemnly say that. He admitted once shaking his fist at his wife, and saying he could understand ruffians, under sudden influence, murdering their wives. This was when she fastened her teeth in his hand. He had, however, since apologised to her for what he had done. As to the bathing incident, he asserted positively that he did not push her into the water beyond his chest, and then she beckoned to the girl to send the boy down to him, but she misunderstood it, or she need not have come down with him at all.—Evidence was given on behalf of Farnham, said he was frequently in contact with the Vicar, and had known him for twelve years. He never saw the least ill-temper. He had seen him provoked by his wife, but had born it so well as could be expected under the circumstances, and on one occasion he had
